

NORTH HALTON'S ONLY TRULY INDEPENDENT DAILY MULTIMEDIA NEWSGROUP

Reclaiming our community, one story at a time.

HERALD ARCHIVES

LINKS

SEARCH

Green bin waste plants stink?

Posted on Tuesday, December 05 @ 08:50:09 EST by editor

November 5, 2006

Ontario: In an October 4, 2006 issue of the National Post, Halton residents were given a brief glimpse of the "stink" to come if Halton Region proceeds with its controversial bureaucratic ambitions to further develop its "Green bin" or "GreenCart" initiative.

Quote from the story:

"Halton Recycling Ltd., a decade-old organics processing facility along Highway 404, has never really worked properly, locals say. The place emits a pungent odour that led to 1,000 complaints to the Town of Newmarket in the past year.

Numerous orders from the Ministry of the Environment have not solved the problems, the town says.

So in August, 2005, Newmarket took Halton to court.

Last Friday, Mr. Justice Alan Bryant of the Superior Court of Justice in Newmarket ruled that the odours coming from the plant cause "unreasonable interference with the use and enjoyment of property and in the workforce."

Read the full National Post story...

[Where is the GreenCart Program going? Did you know? \[pdf\]](#)

Halton Waste Management - GreenCart Home Page